So in the case of Gill vs. Staylor, 93 Md. 453, decided June 3, 1901, prior to the Act of 1902, ch. 495, the court held that the evidence there offered did not fall under a like provision of the law. The scope of the present law as applied in the Engleman case covers parties in all cases, and is not confined to those cases where the suits are by or against executors. Synopsis of the Act of 1888, chapter 315, Code 1888, Article 35, section 2. 1. When an original party to a contract is dead or mentally incompetent. 2. Or when an executor or administrator is a party to the suit, 3. Either party may lie called by his opponent; but 4. Can not testify upon his own offer or that of a co-plaintiff or co-defendant, 5. Otherwise than now by law allowed, 6. Unless nominal party merely, 7. Except where the deceased or incompetent has testified before dying or becoming incompetent, 8. Then only to what deceased or incompetent has testified to. 9. Except where cause of action has arisen on a contract or on a transaction with an executor, administrator or committee, 10. Or the executor, administrator or committee testifies to a conversation with other party, 11. Not competent for any party to the cause examined herein to corroborate his testimony by previous statements out of presence of other party, 12. When contract is made with agent other party can...
